

HOME SAFETY FOCUS AT EMERGENCY SERVICES SHOW 2016

'Home Safety 2016' will run as a new show within this year's Emergency Services Show on 21-22 September in Birmingham, where emergency services will share collaborative approaches to helping people live safely at home while equipment suppliers will showcase the latest specialist equipment for the safe home.

The Emergency Services Show will roll out a host of new features this year, as it moves to the larger Hall 5 at the NEC, Birmingham on 21-22 September.

A free two-day seminar programme will focus on lessons learnt, curated and inspired by the Joint Emergency Services Interoperability Programme (JESIP) and the National Operational Guidance Programme for the Fire & Rescue Service.

The multi-agency responses to recent incidents will be reviewed in order to identify new rescue techniques and communication models for improved outcomes in the future. Further seminars will also cover the areas of ICT Innovation and PPE.

As well as showcasing drone suppliers, the new Drone Zone will bring together industry specialists and end-users who will make presentations on UAV technology and will share their experiences with delegates.

The programme includes a presentation on risk management for Remotely Piloted Aircraft Systems (RPAS) – commonly referred to as drones – and the factors affecting RPAS operational safety in both civil airspace and commercial space. Other sessions will cover privacy, security implications and legislation.

PARAMEDIC WORKSHOPS

The Collaboration Zone and College of Paramedics CPD workshops have also been enlarged. The College of Paramedics' free 30-minute workshops will be delivered from the expanded College of Paramedics' CPD area.

No pre-booking is required and all those attending the workshops will be given a CPD certificate. The new CPD-accredited Trauma Care Training & Education Zone will feature CPD skills stations and a fully immersive training suite, where teams can perform a primary survey under pressure.

The Emergency Services Show is expected to feature over 450 exhibiting companies and organisations. The indoor and outdoor exhibition is a one-stop-shop for sourcing all the latest services and equipment required for emergency response and keeping the public safe from threats such as floods, road traffic accidents and terrorist attacks.

The Emergency Services Show moves to a larger hall at Birmingham's NEC on 21-22 September.

LIVE DEMONSTRATIONS

Exhibiting companies include leading names in firefighting equipment, search and rescue, extrication, first response, communications, IT, protective clothing and uniforms, vehicles and fleet, vehicle equipment, outsourcing, training, community safety, station facilities, water rescue and medical supplies.

Several exhibitors are planning live demonstrations of equipment and rescue techniques. The event also presents an opportunity to meet, network and collaborate with colleagues within the emergency services, government departments, voluntary sector partners and NGOs.

To register for entry visit www.emergencyuk.com Follow on Twitter @emergencyukshow #ESS2016 or on Facebook The Emergency Services Show

THE EMERGENCY SERVICES SHOW
HALL 5 | NEC | BIRMINGHAM | 21-22 SEPTEMBER 2016